PROJECTS

Snowman Game

A command line JavaScript application game in which the player tries to guess a word letter by letter.

- Created a word library using an array and a random word generator that chooses a word at random from that array. Used strings and loops to check users' input against letters of the generated random word.
- Used readlineSync in order to communicate with the user via the console and an object to store their stats.
- Application reviewer said "Your attention to detail is impressive!"

Hellington

A command line JavaScript application, text-based adventure game.

- Implemented control flow to create different code paths and to repeat code execution in order to create a story-line.
- Used readlineSync in order to communicate with the user via the console.
- Application reviewer said "I love your story telling!"
